- Construction: Major construction projects are complex and take a considerable amount of planning and coordination. They require programming to identify needs, budgeting, design development, completion of construction documents, bidding, construction, and transition into the new facility. Many of these types of projects will be multi-year efforts.
- Major Facility Repair: This category includes major repairs to existing buildings such as re-roofing, major structural repairs, replacement of mechanical systems, re-surfacing of parking lots, etc.

Projects may include replacement of items for reasons other than failure or wear, upgrades, replacement of mechanical or electrical systems for other than failure, new security systems, windows, new cabinets, new walls, major wiring for data or telephone systems, new flooring, painting, etc. Space reconfiguration may include moving and relocating the above items in order to re-purpose the space. These projects do not include major construction such as moving walls and doors.

 for storage, please request this service. Please include a complete description of the
